• Editorial: There, Their, and They’re; Its and It’s; Principle and Principal; Lead and Led: Common “Typos” that Confuse Us All

• Caring Theory and Practice—Entering a Simultaneous Concept Analysis

• From Documentation to the Problem: Controlling Postoperative Pain

• Concept Analysis: Awareness of Discrimination Based on Genetic Information

• An Exploratory Study About Meaningful Work in Acute Care Nursing

• Heterosexism and Health Care: A Concept Analysis

• Elders Adapting to a Chronic Diagnosis Within a Nursing Refuge
77 Editorial: There, Their, and They’re; Its and It’s; Principle and Principal; Lead and Led: Common “Typos” that Confuse Us All
   Patricia S. Yoder-Wise, RN, EdD, NEA-BC, ANEF, FAAN

78 Caring Theory and Practice—Entering a Simultaneous Concept Analysis
   Albertine Ranheim, RN, PhD, Anita Kärner, RN, MPH, PhD, and Carina Berterö, RNT, BSc, MScN, PhD

91 From Documentation to the Problem: Controlling Postoperative Pain
   Uchenna Nworah, MSN, RN, FNP-BC

100 Concept Analysis: Awareness of Discrimination Based on Genetic Information
   Mary Beth Steck, MS, APRN, BC

   Jochebed Bosede Ade-Oshifogun, RN, PhD, and Thaddeus Dufelmeier, RN

113 An Exploratory Study About Meaningful Work in Acute Care Nursing
   Carol Pavlish, PhD, RN, FAAN, and Roberta Hunt, PhD, RN

123 Heterosexism and Health Care: A Concept Analysis
   Sarah Morrison, RN, BSN, MSN, and Shirley Dinkel, PhD, ARNP-BC

131 Elders Adapting to a Chronic Diagnosis Within a Nursing Refuge
   Margaret Hegge, EdD, RN, MS, and Georgia Dinndorf-Hogenson, MSN, RN, CNOR